

Concurrent programming

Kristoffer Klokke

2022

Contents

1	Introduction	3
---	--------------	---

1 Introduction

Concurrency is the act of having multiple execution done simultaneously which interact with each other.

This is done to utilise multiple CPU cores rather than rely on CPU speed. Not only this but instead of having single powerful computers, bigger networks of computers can be used.

The benefits comes at a cost of complexity, due to the all possible outcomes of different timed execution.